

1995 Session
Kansas State University

The American Legion Boys' State of Kansas

Overview

"To inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation" is the purpose of the American Legion Boys' State program. The first Boys' State was organized by Hayes Kennedy and Harold L. Card of the Department of Illinois in 1935.

The Department of Kansas, holding charter number five, was among the first to institute this week long government-in-action program. Now, nearly every state American Legion, realizing the program's potential for educating youth in practical politics and government operation, has set up its own Boys' State.

The American Legion Boys' State of Kansas was headquartered in Wichita until 1963 when the program was moved to Lawrence and the campus of the University of Kansas. In 1992, Boys' State moved to Kansas State University in Manhattan.

Boys' State is open to any male high school senior-to-be who meets the academic standards and demonstrates leadership qualities. Many Legion Posts as well as Civic and Church groups and individuals sponsor delegates each year.

Nearly 700 delegates from this session join the over 45,000 young men of Kansas as alumnae of Boys' State. Each year past staters return to help the next group of delegates as counselors. In addition, past counselors and Legion members give up a week of their summers to help as Advisors to the Staters.

During each session, two Staters are chosen by their peers to represent Kansas as Senators at Boys Nation. Convening in Washington, D.C., in mid-July, Boys Nation gives the Senators a chance to form and run a government on the national level.

The Executive Director's Message

All of the planning for and the execution of the fifty-eighth session of the American Legion Boys' State of Kansas is now committed to history. Committed to history and the hearts and minds of over 700 young men from across Kansas. It is with great pride that I am able to report that the 1995 Staters excelled at the task that they accepted when they first filled out their application.

Our Boys' State staff, consisting of volunteers from around the country, met periodically throughout the year to evaluate the previous session and plan for the this one. These fine men spent a great deal of their time and money so that this session was the best so far. It is with great pride that I am able to report that they have succeeded once again in the task that they accepted when they agreed to be a Counselor or an Advisor.

Perhaps Nic Delgado, a recent Boys Nation delegate stated it best when he said,

"...At your hands I have learned leadership, character, respect, discipline, integrity, hope, prayer and above all, the love of my country and my fellow man."

If ever, as a sponsor, you have wondered if your efforts were being rewarded, you need only to speak with an alumnus of Boys' State that put his heart and soul into his week as a Stater.

To all associated with the continuing success of The American Legion Boys' State of Kansas, I thank you on behalf of the American Legion and on behalf of everyone who will be positively affected by their association with a Boys' Stater.

- Allen Klassen (1976) - Hillsboro

For this week of Boys' State, we've all come together to learn about politics. We've taken a week out of our summer to not only see the political process in action, but to become part of it. To come face to face with real problems, real obstacles and real people. We've come together to see the necessity of political involvement and what it takes to shape our society. And we've come to learn that in order to accomplish anything, we have to work with others. - Eric Reid (1993) - Dodge City

Where do we begin in documenting the fifty-eighth session of the American Legion Boys' State of Kansas? We begin with the people for whom many people have worked long, hard hours. We begin with the people for whom many people have donated money. We begin with the people for whom all Kansans have the highest expectations of achievement.

From every corner of our state, young men, entering their senior year in high school, met on the beautiful campus of Kansas State University in Manhattan.

They came from the inner cities, from the suburbs, from rural communities. They came from large public high schools, from small public high schools, from private high schools.

They came...not knowing what they had gotten themselves into.

And when they met, each on equal footing with the best young men that Kansas has to offer...they grew in their knowledge of democracy, of freedom, of responsibility and of self.

THE STATER'S UNION

Vol. 58, No. 2      Tuesday, June 6, 1995

Bazaar dominates second day of week, offers break from routine

By Lucas Loughmiller

The staff and members of the 1995 session of Boys' State did it was time to offer a change in the usual routine of the camp's week. They did this by offering, for the first time, a bazaar.

At this bazaar, all associations and political parties had a chance to display their finest wares.

There at the gathering, each state was given a chance to contribute to the funding of organizations whose work they had helped bettered.

Another feature of the bazaar was the opportunity for the campers to switch their political parties.

Many organizations used different gimmicks to get noticed.

The Patrioticists announced the arrival of an old John Mellencamp tape with different lyrics. They also played in the crowd with the bandmates, so did the Patrioticists.

Some fundraising was done between the games.

Many political signs were set up around the bazaar and many before it displayed a common theme in the form of their state.

Staters

The Staters' shirt bears the logo of the American Legion, the sponsor of Boys' State.

The American Legion National Headquarters is located in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Topeka is the host for the Department Headquarters of the American Legion in Kansas.

We encourage you to visit these buildings and learn more about the American Legion and its youth programs.

Registration is a fast-paced process. Everyone is greeted with a smile and any helpful information that can be given.

Here, Advisor Royce Tinkler explains the packet of information and bar-codes that the Stater will use throughout the week.

Almost immediately, the work of self-governing begins. Decisions have to be made early that will affect a Stater's whole week...much like the decision making process in real life. A Stater must decide if he is going to run for an elective office or try to get an appointive office.

He must weigh his own interests and the chances of getting the office he is seeking. He must also weigh the offerings of the other candidates for his chosen office.

Once that decision has been reached, every Stater must then set out on his own course to achieve the goal he has set.

He must convince others that he is the person for the job.

Evaluating their solutions

Not only does each Stater have to convince other people that he is the right person for the job, but equally importantly, he must listen to others.

He must be able to discern whom he has the trust in to vote for in the elections to come.

Does this person share my personal beliefs about government? Does he have that special something that makes him a leader among leaders? Can I give him one of my most sacred gifts...my vote?

The Bazaar

Perhaps one of the most successful events of the week was the Bazaar. During this time, each group from every place on the political spectrum stood on their "soap-box" and let others hear the justifications for their causes.

Staters had the option, for the first time in Boys' State history in Kansas, of changing their political party.

Often times this is the first real experience that Staters have to challenge their own "developed" opinions. Staters who come from a homogenous background begin to flavor the diversity of our multi-cultural society. As they begin to examine their beliefs, they rapidly search for those that are truly their own.

Mixed in with the these lofty goals of examination and questioning, comes the reality of day-to-day politics.

Here, an just political rather tasty donuts enterprising Stater offers not opinions and goals, but some to sweeten his political pie.

The Business of Government

The business of government begins at the American Legion Boys' State of Kansas with the official Oath of Office. Governor Kris Humbarger (1994) - Lawrence, swears in the 1995 Mayors.

Already, Precinct Committeemen from each party have met and starting developing platforms. Association Representatives have received their orientations and have begun bazaar preparations and to plot political strategy .

The ever-present Newspaper Staff, the watchdog of a free society, have laid out their course for their week of reporting the news and the news-behind-the-news.

Those Staters with gubernatorial aspirations have already pled their cases to their constituents and have either received their endorsement to run for Governor or have seen their course of action at Boys' State change dramatically.

"Follow the money...."

The Bank of Boys' State kept track of each Stater's accounts.

Political parties, candidates and PAC's vied for donations.

Cities and counties dealt with real budget issues, financial crises, unemployment, taxes and valuations.

Political parties met and set strategies and agendas.

The newly elected House of Representatives and Senate met to introduce, discuss and vote on legislation that would be the report card of the 1995 session of Boy's State.

1995 Elected State Officials

Governor William Hester, Lt. Governor Ryan Nelson, Secretary of State Bourke Hutchinson, Attorney General Chris Graber, State Treasurer Allen Wilkinson, Commissioner of Insurance Aaron Cross

Working with each other in mutual respect provided the framework necessary for positive government action.

Once again, the professional representatives of the Kansas Highway Patrol gave their Boys' State counter-parts the benefit of their experience and training.

The Talent

The Recreational Activities

In spite of the occasional Kansas thunderstorm, Staters were able to spend time throwing frisbees, playing basketball, competing at volleyball, enjoying softball and other recreational activities.

The VIP's

Attorney General Carla Stovall made a lasting impression.

We are frequently honored to be joined by the real life counter-parts of our office holders.

This year we enjoyed Governor Bill Graves' thunderous speech.

We are always appreciative of the visit by Past Commanders of the American Legion Department of Kansas.

This year, the Department Headquarters Staff presented the Staters a brief history of the American Legion and its many youth programs and opportunities.

Counselors started arriving for the 1995 session on Friday.

By Saturday, almost every Counselor had gone through registration and at least one orientation session.

The long, hard hours of pre-State preparation were beginning to bear fruit.

For the first time, a session on culture shock, sometimes felt by Staters when they first arrive, was given by Coordinator Todd Moore.
